Rohaly Shoots Staff

FREDERICKSBURG: The BULLET editorial board was ruthlessly gunned down yesterday during a routine board meeting. The victims include Cheryl J. Lettermann, Associate Editor; Cynthia I. Nash, Business Manager; Jackie Conciatore, News Editor; Shannon McGurk, Features Editor; Jim Pierpoint, Sports Editor; and J. Houston Hampton, Photography Editor. All were dead on arrival at Hugh Mercer Health Center. Cause of deaths were gunshot wounds and slashed throats.

MWCPD later charged editor-in-chief Betsy Rohaly with the cold-blooded slaying. She is being held with no bail in the ACL Male Housing quarters.

The reported murder weapons were a .35 caliber shotgun and x-acto knives. The knives are commonly used in routine newspaper paste-up and layout. The shotgun was not BULLET property. It seems that the suspect, in a fit of rage, grabbed the nearest implements on her desk.

When asked why she would do such a thing, Rohaly replied "they were getting to be a pain in the ass, so I decided to get rid of them."

It was reported that several days prior to the alleged slaying, Rohaly had been irritable, bitchy, and generally unhappy.

Said her roommate, Liz Corr, "she was just getting so hard to put up with. I knew that the board was on her nerves, but I would never, but I would never have thought that she'd go this far."

Media colleagues were also stunned to learn about the killings. JB Blair, business manager for the radio station WMWC said, "Betsy was such a sweet girl—the pressure must have done it to her. Or maybe it was the drugs."

Whether the BULLET can continue without the supposedly vital editorial board members remains to be seen. One police officer quoted Rohaly as saying "Of course there will be a BULLET this week. I can do it myself—I always did it in the past. It will probably be easier without the board around. They were always in my way."

It is not yet known whether Rohaly will be allowed to continue as editor-in-chief. Monica Peterschmidt, acting Board of Publications and Broadcasting chairman in the wake of Nash's death, has allegedly said that it is unlikely that she will let Rohaly continue as either editor or as secretary-treasurer of the BPB.

Meanwhile, Rohaly is making an effort to use the recently purchased BULLET editwriter as collateral for her bail. She refuses to surrender her office keys, and has requested the use of a typewriter. The administration, unsure of what she may be plotting, has refused all requests. Rohaly will file suit in Fredericksburg court tomorrow, claiming cruel and unusual punishment. ["I can't live without my typewriter" she cries at every passing set of footsteps.]

Needless to say, Rohaly will plead innocent to the six counts of murder—her plea is insanity. "Everyone knows I'm insane, it goes with the job."

Administration Recognizes Sex

by SHANNON MCGURK

In an unprecedented news conference today, Mary Washington College Press Secretary Harry Organs told an assembled student body that the MWC administration is known for quite some time now that sex is occurring in residence halls, it is occurring with monotonous regularity, it is becoming entirely too noisy, and that the administration intends to become intimately involved with the problem as soon as an opportunity presents him or herself.

Speaking to approximately 500 students in Dodd Auditorium, Organs commented on what many student leaders have been speculating on for quite some time. The administration, "Organs stated, "is concerned and quite obviously excited about the latest developments in the situation. We intend to leave no drawers left unchecked, no closets left unopened." commenting on the closet aspect of the "affair," Organs impressed upon the students that the administration will come out of any and all closets to address itself and its members to the affair. Organs said, in fact, that "I have one young man on my staff. I promise you I will engage my only member quite vigorously and repeatedly until I am satisfied with the results."

Asked exactly what the problem was, Organs paused, and replied "(The administration) feels that given the exciting figures on this campus we should recognize our laxity in using this channel of education in the past. Some professors in many departments have been experimenting on students with varying degrees of success, but have commented that the thrill of discovery has far outweighed any detrimental side effects encountered thus far. Although we have known about the sex, we have felt it better to ignore it in the past. After all, everyone should be able to have the maturity to recognize a sexual situation when he or she sees one. We have been making the assumption that when a young person comes to college at 17 or 18 they should learn from their professors that these things happen. It's all a part of growing up. The administration also feels it would be damaging to the college's reputation to let parents know this sort of thing goes on. However, with these new developments... Given some exciting findings in many of the departments, we intend to attack and exploit this underused method of education in the future."

Asked if the education will be restricted to women students, Organs replied "Of course not, we will not discriminate in any way. It is true, that because of the predominantly female population in the past most of the faculty's "co-workers" have been women. However, with the influx of male students of a large caliber, the entire faculty has been encouraged to investigate to the fullest the potential of these fine, new, large members."

Asked why this method of enlightenment has not been tried before, Organs replied "This has been going on for quite awhile here at MWC. I happen to know quite a few professors who have been experimenting with students for quite some time. It is just that it has up to this point been occurring in the classroom. Now that we realize it happens in your private lives as well, we feel it should be exploited and used to the benefit of the college and the student bodies."

Addressing the noise factor, Organs stated, some less enthusiastic residence hall students have complained that headboards banging against the walls and screams of "Oh God, Oh God, wait for me, wait for me..." have interfered with their studying. "I don't know what's going on," said one student, "but it sounds like they're hurting each other." One residence hall director was severely injured when the door she was leaning her head against suddenly opened and she fell to the floor. "The administration," Organs added, "feels that since this is going on in the residence halls, it is time we faced up to the facts. However, if we are going to face up to the facts we feel we should at least get something for our troubles. If we address it we can help you all."

ACL To Be Torn Down

by Roho

As part of a sweeping move back to the "good ole days," high administration officials today announced the proposed demolition of Ann Carter Lee Hall.

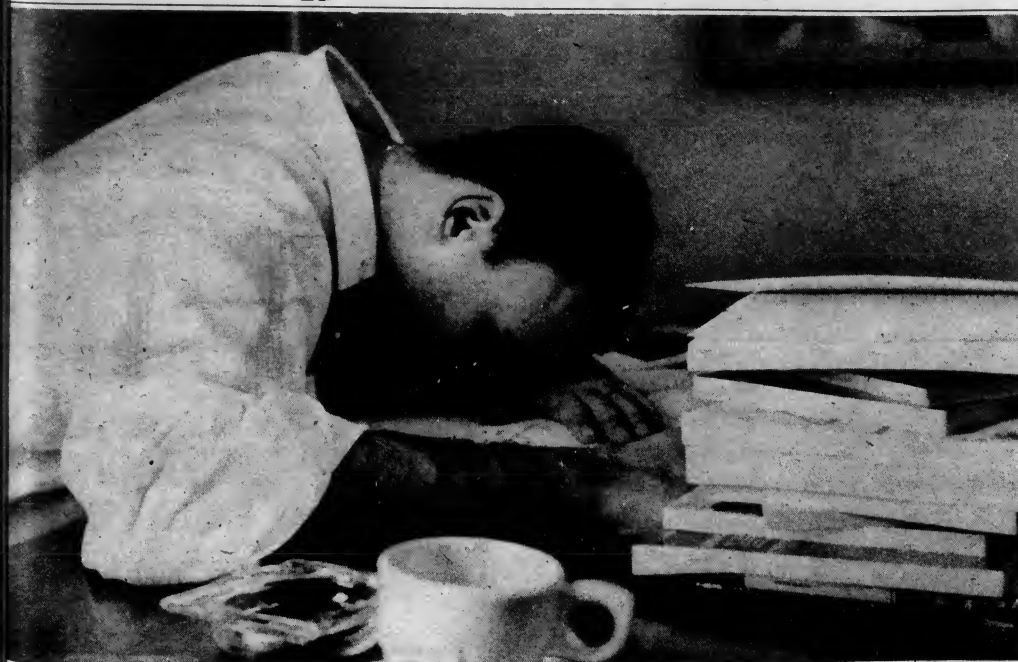

The proposal, which calls for removing the structure of the hall while leaving the original patio intact, would also require the poolroom being reconstructed for use as a pool.

"We all think that this move would be consistent with MWC tradition," said President Woodwork, when questioned. "Dances on the terrace will be resumed and we can all benefit from another swimming pool."

Student protest, to this point has been minimal. "I guess I'll miss the C-Shop the most" said one who preferred to remain anonymous.

Occupants of "Media Central," however, are outraged. "Just where do they expect us to put the radio station?" questioned one WMWC board member. "We can't put it under water. Maybe we should put it in Dean Gorden's office, where it used to be." There has been no comment from the administration.

Anyone with suggestions or comments about ACL's destruction are asked to write: Office of the Dean of Inmates, ACL 19.

Party?

The party situation on campus is no less than outrageous. After they kicked us out of the ball room we haven't been able to find a good place to get drunk and... well you know. Anyhow, we at the BULLET have figured out a solution to the dilemma.

The pool room is too small and when you drink some you fall down the stairs. Seacobeck is nice but the floor gets pretty slick, especially when it's hard to stand in the first place. And George said we were not to have parties in our dorm unless we lived in Russell or Jefferson, and we all know how often they have parties!

But one building on campus has been found by BULLET staffers to be perfect for the kind of party MWC is famous for. That big building with the champagne glasses out front, E. Lee Trinkle.

Trinkle is currently being used as a library. What use does a college student have for one of them things? Not one BULLET staffer has been in there all year, and it is obvious by the traffic in and out of there after 11 p.m. that few others use it either during prime party hours.

The new alarm system could be rigged to keep out townies and all frat boys with no stock holdings. Of course, MWC guys will be strictly forbidden. That fine old gentleman in the security uniform would make a fine beertender.

We recommend prompt and immediate action on this issue. The college community must realize its priorities, especially this Thursday. Therefore, we are proclaiming Thursday Party for Trinkle Day. If you support this position, go to the kegger and drink a beer.

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

This letter is not about abortion.

Sincerely,
Chico Anderson

Dear Editor,

What's all this commotion about Mary Washington's name change? I think it's a stupid, impolite thing to do.

First of all, why would anyone want to change the name? Mary Washington is a nice name. I like it. I don't see how anyone could justify changing such a good name.

But the main reason it's stupid is because it's impolite. I don't think anyone asked Mary Washington about it, and even if they did, I'll bet she didn't answer. It's stupid to change her name, I mean, she is dead. Her parents probably wouldn't like it. It's her husband's last name and I doubt he would like it either. She obviously didn't want her name changed or she would have done it herself while she was living.

Thank you,
Princess Woodard

Dear Editor:

Radio station? What radio station?

John Anderson

Dear Editor:

I don't think anyone really appreciates the difficult, austere and demanding life a professor of English at a predominantly female liberal arts school leads. To be perfectly honest, as an existentialist I don't care what people think about me and my Sea-Ducer. But look at it from my point of view; I am only looking for someone to discuss literature with, and I find my ebony tower intriguing.

Yours Dubiously,

Raman Singh

Dear Editor:

The other night, you know, I was sitting out on the hockey field, you know, just sort of sitting, you know? Wow, when all of a sudden I see this big glowing thing, you know, it was all red and white and glowing, like some big joint. But the weird thing, you know, was the shape. Wow, man, like it had a real long body, kind of pencil-shaped, you know? And like it had these things sticking out of its side, you know, like wings. And it had these two little things sticking out the end and it kind of made this roaring noise, you know? Now my question is: Is pot hazardous to the brain? No, wait, I... wow, I, well, I forgot what I was thinking. Oh hell, I'll just go play frisbee, you know?

Sincerely, believe me,

Johnny Infinity

Dear Editor:

I thought that you might be interested in knowing that the next possible topic for a lecture series is "Great Moments in American Comedy-- From Washington Irving to Mark Twain to Will Rogers to Gerald Ford." All comments are welcome.

H. Conrad Warlick

Dear Editor:

I wish to commend your staff for its fair, objective and unbiased campaign coverage in this year's Presidential race. I also wish to thank the College Republicans for their campaigning on my behalf. As a show of appreciation to these two organizations, I am submitting to Congress the name of Vincent Dibenedetto for the position of Presidential Press Secretary. This should fulfill my campaign promise showing my concern for the youth, of this nation, and my gratitude for the college vote.

Sincerely,

Ronald W. Reagan

Dear Editor:

In response to the record reviews this semester by Ms. Betsy Rohaly, Ms. Beth Francis and Mr. Thomas Colletta-- why has THE BULLET chosen not to review any albums by Italian artists? I can understand it from the first two, but I expect better from a paisano like Mr. Colletta. Is he denying the existence of classic Italian artists like Dean Martin, Perry Como, Mario Lanza, and the ever popular Fabian? They influenced the shape of contemporary music and will be remembered long after the B-52s, Boz Scaggs, and Robert Palmer bite the dust (which can be arranged, if you know what I mean, Capice?). Either Mr. Colletta gives a fairer shake to the importance of Italians in music, or the Sergeants-At-Arms of the Italian-American Decency League, Mr. Nunzio and Mr. Rocco, will make him an offer he can't refuse.

Sincerely,

Frank Sinatra

Obituaries

Shannon McGurk

Shannon Lowe McGurk, a Mary Washington College student was gunned down by his employer yesterday, ending a life of crime, indiscretion, poor taste and sordid details of such magnitude they are not to be discussed in a family paper.

Born in Kansas in November of 1960, McGurk attended various correctional institutions before arriving at the peak of his criminal life at Mary Washington College. Here at Mary Washington he has been notorious for various acts of indiscretion, including lewd behavior in public and obnoxious behavior in private.

Known to his close "business associates" as Two Dogs, McGurk had built for himself a reputation for being ruthless in social situations. Using all the evil devices of social intimidation in public, McGurk, accompanied by infamous Kingpins of the Mary Washington College underworld, established a kingdom of obnoxious behavior and was in fact, quite successful at becoming disliked and sometimes intensely hated.

A two year resident of Bushnell Residence Hall, McGurk surrounded himself with luxury, a fast woman, fast cars, big industry and all the trappings of a perverse and fattening life. A close friend, John "Hoffenburger with cheese" Hoffman, said of McGurk, "I hated him. He was obnoxious and disliked by almost everyone with whom he dealt. A cruel man, but fair... and famous for being a cry-baby. I am glad he is dead, I have never been happier."

Another close friend, and McGurk's roommate, Mark Ingrao, said of him, "He had disgusting habits, he was overweight, he had bad breath, and his entire attitude was disgusting. His clothes were a shambles and he treated no one with any respect. But, I guess all in all, he was o.k. After all, I have his behavior to thank for this nice room that I have all to myself."

Laurie Scherer, McGurk's female companion was at a party and was too drunk for comment.

Jacqueline Conciatore

Jacqueline Anne Conciatore, Bullet News Editor, died yesterday in MWC's Mercer Hall after enraged Bullet editor Betsy Rohaly opened fire in Room 304 of ACL, fatally wounding all six of her editorial board members. The 19 year old Conciatore is originally from Danbury, CT.

Conciatore's career interests lied with journalism. A friend recalls her adamantly saying, "I'm going to write for a newspaper if it kills me."

Cynthia Nash

Cynthia Nash, previous business manager for THE BULLET met her demise at the hands of Betsy Rohaly, editor-in-chief, when Rohaly, realizing that Nash was extorting BULLET funds in order to pay salaries to the rest of the BULLET staff, pulled a gun on Nash and ordered her to stop. When Nash refused, Rohaly pulled the trigger.

Nash was born in Greeley, Colorado, but moved with her family to Virginia, when she was quite young. Since an early age, she has plotted ways of extorting money: first from her parents, then her employers, and finally from her colleague.

Jim Pierpoint

The college community has seen the end of an era with the death of Jim Pierpoint, 20, who died yesterday of gunshot wounds and lacerations from an x-acto knife.

Pierpoint, besides being Sports Editor of this rag, was a varsity soccer player and S.A. Whip. His major duties included figuring out what a Whip was and acting as personal escort to the S.A. President.

Pierpoint's death will not end the family presence at the college. Explained his brother Tim, a junior here at MWC, "There's still my sister and two brothers left to go here. We'll be around for years."

Should the siblings decide not to attend, Pierpoint's father has plans to become a professor, and if all else fails, Mrs. Pierpoint will take over as Dean.

Pierpoint was also a charter member of I FELTA THI fraternity. The organization will be throwing an end of semester party from 1-4 p.m. this Thursday in the Presidential Suite of Bushnell Hall. They will host DELTA THI RAMMERS in a drink-off.

Houston Kempton

J. Houston Kempton was yet another member of the BULLET editorial staff members who perished in Monday's bizzare mass murder. Kempton was born in Washington, D.C. and spent his childhood in McLean, Virginia.

"He was a doer and a go-getter," commented one of his high school teachers, "he was destined for the top. It was no surprise when he wound up at Mary Washington College in 1975.

Kempton, who was in his sixth year at MWC, had earned a reputation as a master frisbee player and TV critic, but is most remembered as one of MWC's greatest lovers. "I can't recall him ever going home from a keg party alone," commented one of his ex-roommates. "He was just hot in bed," recalls an old female acquaintance.

Einstein meets Stinkfoot

by TOM COLLETTA

Just as people argue about the Oklahoma City. The list of cultural content of television, debates once took place about drafts of their current hits, is staggering:

Carly Simon- It was Tex who persuaded her not to call her current Top 10 hit, "Jesse, If You Come By Here Again, I'm Going To Bash In Your Head With A Sledgehammer, You Idiotic Moron", but that's the version you get to hear here.

Leonard Skinner- Leonard had just met a groupie from Florida and Tex had to talk him out of naming one of his biggest songs "Sweet Home Tallahassee", but you get to hear it from Tex.

Jackson Brown- The first draft of the title cut from his current album was written after looking at a Playboy centerfold in Tex's office. But, fortunately, Tex got to him in time and prevented the song and the album from being called "Fold Out".

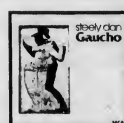

Bruce Springstine- A remarkable original, written after his current album, "The Riverbed", called "I've Got Those Get Me The Ford, Get Me The Dodge, My Chevy's In The Damn Garage Blues" is, as is always the case from him, the highlight of the album. (After Bruce's number, Tex quipped, "He really brought down the house. Repair work will begin next week. There were no serious injuries.")

Other artists on this package include Paul Simon, Joe Simon, Simple Simon and the Piemen, The Doobie Brothers, The Bellamy Brothers, The Blues Brothers and Dr. Joyce Brothers, all with introductions from Tex a la Don Kirshner-i.e. everyone is his "good friend." It's an impressive set, one which will probably bring money and renewed credibility to Pi Are Square records. But, the one thing I'm wondering about is, is this what Albert Einstein would have wanted?

New Sport Introduced

In order to cohere with title 9 rulings, the Mary Washington College athletic department has established another male varsity team, Inebriated Track and Field.

With potential lettermen abounding in Westmoreland, Madison, Bushnell and the I FELTA THI fraternity, coach Al Keholic feels his squad should be in contention for the state crown by next fall.

"We've got some well trained men out there," he said. "I've watched them work out at the C-Shop, and they perform real well on weekends, too."

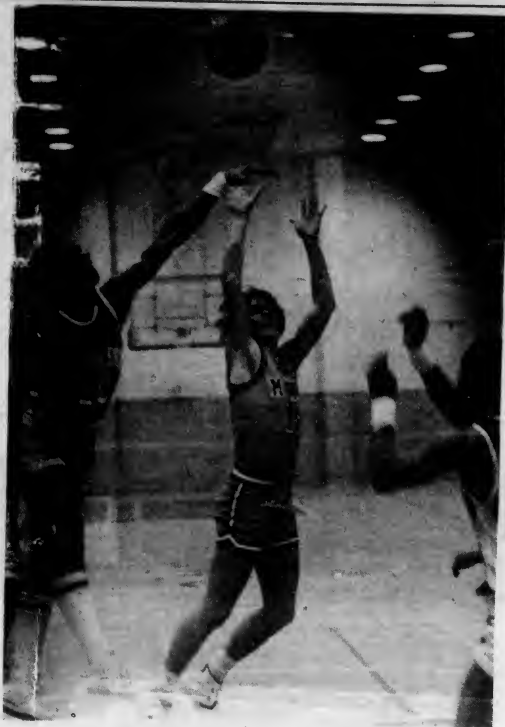

Events in Inebriated Track and Field include the mile sprint to the Giant beer counter, six-pack hurdle and stumble, beer relay, and shot-put (into the mouth).

Tryouts will begin this Thursday with the end of classes, and will conclude sometime Friday morning. Participants will be easily recognized by red eyes and inability to eat that day.

Coach Keholic feels his best draw may be from the varsity soccer club, especially members of what has come to be known as "The Magic Bus." "These players have the experience to hold their liquor while performing," he said.

I FELTA THI is also expected to place most of its members on the squad. The Presidential Suite is renowned for its superior parties and should prove excellent host for visiting sides.

Potential star and president of IFT, John Hoffman, explained "We're doing it for the school." It is evident by the size of John's mid-section that he has been working out for a long time now, exemplifying selfless dedication to the sport. Hoffman's mother was quoted as saying, "It's only baby fat."

B-Ball Windfall Sampson to Play Here

by VIC BRADSHAW

Ralph Sampson, the University of Virginia's 7-foot-4-inch All-American center, announced last night that he will transfer to Mary Washington College. The talented sophomore will join the Blue Tide next fall.

The move surprised everyone as Sampson had never given any indication that he would transfer, especially to MWC. The media assumed that Sampson would announce his intention to turn pro after this season, a much mentioned alternative to staying at UVA his final two years.

The move came as a total surprise to Tide coach Tom Davies. When phoned after the press conference, Davies' only comment was, "What? What the hell kind of joke is this?" But this morning Davies, after finding out his good fortune and discussing the matter with college President Prince Woodard ralphed a statement to the press.

"We're very pleased that Ralph will be joining us next year. We expect him to give our program a big boost. But what we want to assure our ballplayers and alert Ralph to one fact-- he will not get special treatment. Once he steps out of his private limousine and enters Goodrick gym, he'll just be another ballplayer. We will put on his jock just like the other players put on theirs."

The big question-- Why Sampson chose MWC over lucrative multimillion dollar pro offers-- received a quick "No comment" from the man who made Sports Illustrated's cover before playing his first college game. However, in a private interview Sampson divulged his motive.

"I was getting tired of UVA frat life," he commented. "The frats all did the same thing week after week. I decided I wanted something new, and Clark Little's frat seemed to be the thing for me. I want to be part of something new, different, and daringly radical. I'm confident that Little's frat can satisfy these desires."

Sampson, informed that there was no frat house on campus, said he was aware and had discussed his housing arrangement with Woodard and Davies. "Woodard told me that I would be living in some dorm called Brompton. He said he and his wife would probably be comfortable in Bushnell. Davies suggested I live in Brompton because the doors are higher."

Sampson concluded the interview with a comment on academics. "I think Mary Wash will be tougher for me. I hear the female to male ratio is 5-1, and I just don't know if I'll have time to study properly. But Coach Davies told me not to worry. He'll take care of everything."
